Bardavon Presents
Whose Live Anyway?
Friday, April 12 at 8pm at UPAC

W/ Drew Carey, Jeff B. Davis, Joel Murray & Greg Proops

(Kingston, NY) Bardavon presents Whose Live Anyway? With Drew Carey, Jeff B. Davis, Joel Murray and Greg Proops on Friday, April 12 at 8pm at UPAC in Kingston.

Based on the hit TV show: Whose Line Anyway? only it's Whose LIVE Anyway? Enjoy a completely improvised 90-minute show of games, scenes and songs that will tickle not only your funny bone, but every bone in your body. Bring your suggestions and you might be asked to join the cast onstage!

Drew Carey is an American comedian, actor and sports show host. He initially made a name for himself in stand-up comedy while serving in the US Marine Corps and later started his own sitcom, 'The Drew Carey Show'. He also hosted the American version of the show, 'Whose Line is it Anyway', which was aired on ABC. He has since appeared in many television series, movies, music videos and even a computer game. He is known for his love for sports and has worked as a photographer with the US National Soccer Team. He has hosted the game show, 'The Price is Right' since 2007 on CBS. He is also a minority owner of the soccer team, 'Seattle Sounders FC'. He is outspoken and has expressed his political philosophy by saying, "I believe the answers to all the problems we face as a society won't come from Washington, it will come from us. So the way we decide to live and our decisions about what we buy or don't are much more important than who we vote for". He openly expressed dissatisfaction with the Bush administration and their approach to the Iraq War. He supported the Libertarian Party and in 2016 was made an Honorary Chair for the campaign in California.

Greg Proops is a standup comic from San Francisco. He lives in Hollywood. Which is not that bad. Really. The Proopdog is best known for his unpredictable appearances on Whose Line is it Anyway? both US and UK. Starting its 4th season on the CW. Professor Proops has a hit Podcast called The Smartest Man in the World. He records it live in Australia, New Zealand, Montreal, Edinburgh, Amsterdam, San Francisco, Austin, London, Paris aboard a ship in the Caribbean and somehow, Cleveland. Find it at Proopcast.com. Mr. Proops new book The Smartest Book in the World is based on his award-seeking podcast. He did a podcast and signing at Shakespeare and Co. in Paris. smartestbookintheworld.com Greg has lent his voice to Hell and Back, Star Wars the Phantom Menace, The Nightmare Before Christmas and he really was Bob the Builder. Gregory is doing a West End run of Whose Line is it Anyway? this summer at the Palladium Theatre in London. Last summer they played the Adelphi Theatre.

Jeff B. Davis is an actor and comedian, born and bred in Southern California. His career began at age four as Linus in a terribly ill-advised, all-children production of You're a Good Man, Charlie Brown at the Groundlings Theater in Hollywood. At age nine he was cast as Louis in Yul Brynner's final production of The King and I, which toured nationally and closed on Broadway when Jeff was 11, after nearly 800 performances. In high school Jeff began improvising with Los Angeles Comedy Sportz, where he learned the skills he'd later need as a frequent guest on the television show Whose Line is it, Anyway? Jeff has a long list of TV credits, including Steve Martin's NBC comedy The Downer Channel, NBC's Happy Family, the Sarah Silverman Show, Drew Carey's Green Screen Show and Improvaganza, to name a few. Jeff spends many nights of the year performing live with Whose Live Anyway? with Ryan Stiles, Greg Proops, Chip Esten and Joel Murray to standing ovations all over North America. When he's not on stage, Jeff is in Hollywood trying to break George Clooney's record of most failed television pilots. Jeff is currently a recurring guest on CW's reboot of Whose Line is it, Anyway?, and can be heard on the highly-acclaimed, deeply weird Harmontown podcast with NBC's Community creator Dan Harmon. Listen at your own risk.

Joel Murray is a versatile writer-director-actor. The youngest of the nine Murrays is a veteran of over 250 sit-com episodes. He has been a series regular on the comedies Grand, Pacific Station, Love and War, Dharma and Greg and Still Standing. He has also recurred on the series Mike and Molly, My Boys and Two and a Half Men. On the dramatic side, Joel played Freddy Rumsen on AMC's Mad Men as well as Eddie Jackson on Showtime's Shameless. He recently starred in Bobcat Goldthwaite's dark comedy, God Bless America. He can be heard playing Don Carlton in the Pixar prequel, Monsters University. He was also in 2011's Best Picture, The Artist. Joel has been in numerous films including One Crazy Summer, Scrooged, Long Gone, Hatchet, Lay the Favorite, Sophie and The Rising Sun, Mr. Pig, Bloodsucking Bastards, Lamb, and Seven Minutes. He can also be seen in the upcoming The Last Word. He studied improvisation with Del Close, among others, and was a founding member of Chicago's Improv Olympic. He enjoyed five years at The Second City in Chicago. He has been doing theater since the 4th grade, performed with the Remains and Organic Theatres Companies in Chicago and still performs frequently at the I. O. West in Los Angeles.
